Perth's new Archbishop

This week the announcement was made that Perth's new Archbishop has been selected and it is someone the diocese knows very well and someone who is no stranger to 'firsts'.

She was one of the first women ordained to the priesthood, was the first woman bishop to be consecrated in Australia and is now the first woman elected in Australia to the role of Archbishop.

The Right Reverend Kay Goldsworthy AO, Bishop of Gippsland, has been elected Archbishop of Perth, after an extensive eight-month selection process, will take up her post in February 2018.

Please pray for Archbishop-elect Kay and her family as she makes the move back over to WA from Gippsland.

This is wonderful news and we can be excited about the future of our diocese.
